

John Romanous & Associates Pty Ltd provide excellent structural/civil and Hydraulic Engineering Consultation.

Through their sheer dedication, good work ethic and respect for clients they are able to provide simple solutions to any design with minimal cost and construction implications.

During the design phase they co-ordinate well with Architects and other building consultants to eliminate complications and problems during the construction process.

During construction they offer a professional service in that they will respond to any problems that a builder may have and provide a solution promptly. All inspections are carried out on time therefore no delays are experienced on site.

Plans and details are very clear, precise and easy to interpret which enables the structure to be erected on time.

As the moto says "Engineering a strong Australia" in the 30 years working with John Romanous I have never experienced any post construction defects in relation to the structure. The buildings have all been well structurally designed and will always withstand the test of time.
